Transcriber's Office
FLOOR DEBATE

March 9, 2001 LB 114

ago that I was young than probably is the case with anybody on the floor of this Legislature. But my memory has not slipped. I understand what it means to be young. I have four adult children, so I had a chance to observe them passing through their childhood. I am well aware of the types of mistakes, the types of outright wrongful conduct that many young people fall into. We should not throw them away. We should not put chains and other clanking objects onto them in the way that Marley, Scrooge's dead partner...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...was walking through the world with these clanking chains, cash boxes and ledger books for wrongs that he had committed while he was on this earth. We always talk about young people being given a chance to find themselves and live life in accord with the law. But if while they are young, we're going to create new offenses, criminal offenses, keep up punishments on them that we would not dare put on adults, all we are doing is prescribing a blueprint for future failure, for disrespect toward the law. Young people have observed favorite treatment to adults and important adults at that. So in the interest of trying to put some brake...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...b-r-a-k-e, on the misuse of young people, I'm offering this amendment.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Senator Quandahl.

SENATOR QUANDAH: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just in addressing this particular amendment, which I believe is designated FA93, point out a couple of things. Senator Chambers referred, I think, to the compliance checks as sting operations, but I do see in the actual amendment he did actually denote those as compliance checks, and I do appreciate that. And I also appreciate Senator Chambers' attempts and concerns in trying to make LB 114 a better bill, and I guess I would ask him perhaps just one question, if he would yield.
